

In this stage the steel cylinders with the high quality and material are coated by copper and after the necessary quality tests, they are polished by the electromechanical engraving machines.

The engraved cylinders, for the large numbers of printing, again are coated by chromium; finally they are packed after the last sample print and the final approval by quality control unit.